Non-high-density lipoprotein cholesterol (non-HDL-C) is the total amount of cholesterol contained in lipoproteins other than high-density lipoprotein (HDL). HDL is a particle that contains cholesterol, which is called HDL cholesterol or HDL-C. Non-HDL-C is calculated from the results of a lipid profile by subtracting the HDL-C result from the total cholesterol.

Non-High Density Lipoprotein Cholesterol | Lab Tests Online

High-density lipoprotein (HDL) is considered good cholesterol because it removes excess cholesterol from arteries. The HDL-C test as part of a lipid profile screens for unhealthy lipids levels and determines a person's risk of developing heart disease to help make decisions about treatment if there is borderline or high risk.

Footnotes for Framingham point scoring  Note: Framingham risk scoring for men and women is presented in the Appendix below.. Aetna considers hs-CRP testing experimental and investigational for all other indications, including use as a screening test for the general population and for monitoring response to therapy, because its clinical value for these uses has not been established.

The Ives-Stilwell experiment tested the contribution of relativistic time dilation to the Doppler shift of light. The result was in agreement with the formula for the transverse Doppler effect and was the first direct, quantitative confirmation of the time dilation factor. Since then many Ives-Stilwell type experiments have been performed with increased precision.

MCHC In Blood Test, What is it? MCHC stands for mean corpuscular hemoglobin concentration. This is a measurable factor in your blood. Put simply the test measures your hemoglobin levels in your red blood cells and looks at the average amount of hemoglobin per red cell. So MCHC = the amount of hemoglobin present in each red blood cell.

GROMACS 5 works within an elaborate multi-level parallelism that distributes computational work across ensembles of simulations, multiple program paths and domains within simulations, multiple cores working on each domain, exploiting instruction-level parallelism across those cores. This design is able to make effective use of all of the available resources when running typical PME simulations ...

Staphylococcus caprae has been recently classified as a human pathogen, but the incidence of S. caprae in human bone and joint infections (BJIs) is under-reported. In this study, we report 25 cases of S. caprae BJI, and we review the 31 cases published in the literature. Molecular techniques and matrix-assisted laser desorption ionization time-of-flight mass spectrometry improved the ...
